TSU Supports Free Public Education Bill

By Daniel C. De Guzman
Staff, SDU

As part of her advocacy to make public education from elementary down to tertiary level free and accessible to all, Hon. Sarah Jane I. Elago of the Kabataan Party List in partnership with Tarlac State University lead a legislative consultation forum for the students of TSU last March 22, 2017 at TSU Gymnasium. This is in connection House Bill 4800 or better known as the Comprehensive Free Public Education Bill that the said party list filed last January 2017.

Guided by the virtue of Article II Section 17 of the 1987 Constitution which focus on giving priority to education, Ms. Elago visited different State Universities in the country to gain the support of the youth in promulgating the provisions and content of the said proposed House Bill such as the abolition of the tuition system, re-admission of drop-outs, special grants for financially-disadvantaged students and those who have disability as well as integrating a new higher education curriculum which is more inclined to a nationalistic, scientific and mass-oriented approach.

Furthermore, Ms. Elago cited that Neoliberalism is the root cause of the poor state of education here in our country and it should be stopped through the implementation of policies that will provide ample budgetary allocation to public services instead of giving emphasis to deregulation and privatization.

The president of Tarlac State University Dr. Myrna Q. Mallari was grateful that our university was chosen by Ms. Elago as one of the venue to conduct the said forum. She also encourage the students to support the said House Bill that will greatly benefit millions of SUCs students and even those who will enter college next academic year.

TSU, DOLE accredited JGDC, push 2nd Batch of Basic Occupational Safety and Health (BOSH) Training-Workshop

Nerissa S. Olarte,
Head, HRMDU-TAOD

A fully booked five day seminar was held at the La Maja Rica Hotel function room from February 27- March 3, 2017 under the JGDC Occupational Health and Safety Consultancy. The 40 hours training for Basic Occupational Safety and Health was attended by the TSU directors and head of offices or their representatives along with the IMS Team and EMS Committee. BOSH Training is a requisite in becoming a Safety Officer and for those who wish to become a consultant in the same field. Spearheaded by the Extension Services, the program hopes to produce our own Safety Officer knowledgeable on the international standards and practices in support of our international certifications.

The first day marked a day of getting to know the participants as well as the election of the BOSH Training Batch II Officers, the First Batch were the members of the IMS support group held at the Fontana Leisure Park, Clark Field, Pampanga. The elected officers are: President -Engr. Dion B. Rombaoa Jr.; VEEP- Dr. Agnes Ladia; Secretary- Dr. Elsie Canlas; Treasurer- Ar. Eduardo Quintero; Sergeant at Arms- Ar. Garry Advento, Dr. Joey Hipolito, Dr. Daisy Inalvez & Mr. Xyris Gerard A. Fernandez. The three main reasons for maintaining and promoting good standards of health and safety are moral, social (or legal) and economic (financial) considerations. Later during the day, the group met to address concerns on how to strengthen the IMS, EMS and OHS

Committee which in fact would benefit the whole TSU community.

The succeeding days proved ed more and more learning activities especially with regards to the OHSAS 18001- Safety Management Systems. The Hierarchy of Control was explained as acronym ERICPD- Eliminate, Reduce, Isolate, Control, Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and Discipline. The lectures and workshops from day one continued till the last day and the three (3) groups competed for points in answering random questions and observing group presentations. The participants formed a sort of bonding with their fellows from the group as well as the whole batch of participants. The lectures were informational and at the same time fun while incorporating it through a contest won by Group I.

The first speaker was Mr. Elson Soneja who facilitated the training effectively providing, pre and post-test after each topic/ module as well as rewarding tokens to each one earning points for the group in answering his trivia questions. He introduced the OSH Laws and Issuances and OSHS Provisions Rule 1000: General Provisions as well as Fundamentals of Industrial Hygiene. Among the topics discussed are: HIRAC- hazard identification, risk assessment and controls; basic rules in emergencies; handling hazards, and accomplishing safety data sheet (SDS).

On the third day, Engr. Engr. Dexter Alister Bacani, talked about ergonomics, accident and incident investigation, and safety measures, as well as prepare the participants in accomplishing the re-entry plan and did lectures and workshops after every topic. He also used multi-media sources as reference to his lectures and made impact on the safety training incorporated in BOSH. Then the final day March 3, 2017, Friday, the 3 groups experienced the 'walk through' inspection of the training venue for identification of hazards and recommended solutions or actions to be done. That served as an actual application of learning. On the 40th hour the final examination was administered to the whole batch. Realizing that a pre-test was administered the first day, the post-test turned out to be a validation of what were learned during the weeklong training workshop realized through the JGDC Consultancy.

The second batch of BOSH Trainees, with their elected officers are expected to work towards a fulfilment of duties being responsible for health and safety in the workplace by assisting the existing committees working for the sustainability of our IMS, EMS and OHS certifications.

The TSU administration through the mandates of our visionary President Myrna Q. Mallari and the goal oriented Planning Officer, Prof. Redemptor Toledano have made these worthwhile and internationally acclaimed training activities possible.
